

Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations

Securing women's land rights in the context of agricultural investment

This course focuses on gender and land issues in the context of agricultural investment.

It provides concrete guidance on strategies, approaches and measures that can be adopted to enhance women's land rights. This on one hand can foster women's active involvement in agricultural investment, while on the other hand can prevent agricultural investment from negatively impacting women's land rights.

1 hour 15 minutes

Available in English

You will learn about

- The gender gap in land rights and the factors that determine it.
- The risk that agricultural investment threatens women's already weak land rights.
- The importance of securing land rights in order to, on one hand, foster women's involvement in agricultural investment and, on the other hand, prevent negative impacts on women's land rights from agricultural investment.
- Strategies to enhance and protect women's land rights in the context of agricultural investment.

Digital badge

Who is the course for?

A broader set of stakeholders, including representatives from the government, development partners, private investors, non-governmental organizations (NGOs), civil society organizations (CSOs) can be interested in this course to learn how to enhance women's land rights in the context of agricultural investment.

Key partners

This course was developed by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO).

FAO elearning Academy

This course is available through the FAO elearning Academy.

Please visit the Academy and browse our extensive catalogue in multiple languages. Register once to access over 180 titles.

All courses are available as a global public good for free.

How to access the course

1. Go to the e-learning Academy: elearning.fao.org
2. Register and log-in with your user name and password

©FAO, 2023
CC584/EN/1/05.23

[😊] Registration is fast and easy